

MOZAMBIQUE CYCLONE KENNETH

Cyclone Kenneth made landfall in the northern province of Cabo Delgado on 25 April, just six weeks after Cyclone Idai devastated the central region of the country. Although the path of the storm was narrow, it was ferocious, leaving entire villages flattened. One month after Cyclone Kenneth's landfall, humanitarian partners have reached more than 250,000 people with vital life-saving assistance, in support of the Government-led response. The response, however, remains severely under-funded, with just over 10 per cent of required funding received*. More funding is urgently needed to enable humanitarian partners to reach people in need, particularly in hard-to-reach and remote communities.
